

The image features a wide-angle reflecting target, model Z-220, shown in three different views. The top view shows the target from a high angle, highlighting its black, textured handle with yellow accents and the central reflective prism. The bottom right view shows the target from a side angle, revealing a label with technical specifications. The bottom left view shows a smaller, top-down perspective of the target. The background is dark with faint white line art of the target's internal structure.
